

59/91 Embga Mekongo Louis v. Cameroon

Complaint:

Embga Mekongo, a Camerouian citizen, alleges false imprisonment, miscarriage of justice and damages for which he claims the sum of $105m.

Finding:

The Commission finds that the author had been denied due process, contrary to Article 7 of African Charter and had in fact suffered damages. Being unable to determine the amount of damages, the Commission recommends that the quantum should be determined under the law of Cameroon
